Abstract

The character of Chinatown has changed as the society progresses, from the home of the Chinese community to a tourist's attraction with a high economical viability. The culture, tradition and social bondage that have been cultivated by the Chinese inhabitans has become history.

This thesis attempts to recapture this community spirit from the Old Chinatown and reinterpreted it in a modern context.